

II Peter (Introduction)

When we studied I Peter, we discussed some of Peter's background.

About 1 to 2 years after Peter wrote his first letter, he wrote this second letter. It was written just a short while before his death. This means that it was most likely written around 64 A.D.

As we pointed out in the introduction to I Peter, Nero became the Emperor of the Roman Empire in A.D. 54. In A.D. 64 most of Rome was destroyed in the "Great Fire of Rome". Some believed that Nero set the fire himself to clear property that he wanted to claim. He diverted attention away from himself by blaming the Christians. This began a horrible persecution against Christians throughout the Empire.

In Peter's first letter, he reminded his readers to maintain the Christian lifestyle even in the face of suffering. He knew that more persecution was to follow, even his own death was near. Peter wrote this second letter to give a more formal plea for Christians to maintain their faith.

He also points out that you must GROW! He notes the need for knowledge! The only way to grow is to learn God's word. Peter acknowledges that Paul's letters are, in fact, scriptures and should not be twisted. Peter knows that his own letters are inspired by the Holy Spirit. He insists that his readers understand them. He knows that false teachers are already at work in the Christian community. Peter spent some time condemning them. He also spent some time telling the truth about the coming of the Lord and the destruction of the earth. False teachers had begun to "twist" scriptures, including Paul's letters that have been circulating among the Christians community, to teach error about these subjects.

Since Peter's second letter was more formal in its presentation, it is written differently than the first letter. Some have claimed that Peter didn't write it since it was so different in style and language than the first. This claim has been thoroughly rebuked by scholars over the years. Peter's authorship of both letters is well established.
